TRIPLE TRAGEDY

London claimed he had a wife but she has never been seen in this vicinity. He drank a great deal and was always getting into trouble with anyone he came in contact with. The Kilburns say, however, that he was not intoxicated Monday morning and had not been drinking during his stay there. No relatives have yet been located or inquired about the body. It will probably be placed in the tomb and if not claimed, will be buried later at the expense of the town.

Lane Has a Brother.

Tuesday morning, Lane's brother came from Easton, N. H., and took the body back with him to be buried there.

Nancy McCraig was born in the Province of Quebec and came to St. Johnsbury about 15 years ago and later married Mr. Wheaton. To them were born six daughters, Dorris, Mattie, Marion, Ruby, Charlotte and Helen. The oldest daughter is 12 years old and the youngest is two. A touching sight was that of the two youngest girls sitting in their home frightened into silence by the strangers who came to learn about the crime and neighbors who were ready to do whatever they could to help. Little two-year-old Helen looked up at the editor once or twice and plaintively remarked, "Mamma all gone." The four oldest girls were brought from the Union school and seemed dazed as they entered the house filled with strange faces, but as soon as they could be ushered into a room with their father, gave way to a most pitiful outburst of grief. Monday night, four of the girls were taken to the home of Mr. George M. Gray and the other two to the home of Mrs. Mattie Wright, Mr. Wheaton's sister.

Mrs. Wheaton was 37 years old and besides her husband and children, is survived by two brothers in Winnipeg and a sister in Claremont, N. H. She was a woman highly respected by all her acquaintances and a woman who labored to the full extent of her strength for her children and home. No reason can be given for such a brute as London wanting to kill her unless it was to revenge her husband whom he disliked. The funeral of Mrs. Wheaton will be held from the home Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The cake was cut by Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Lucella Nichols. The other tables were decorated with flowers and candles.

Following the banquet a program was given, all taking part being past worthy matrons. Members of the Blue Lodge and their wives were guests. The program included the following numbers: Music by a double mixed quartet, remarks by the toastmaster, Mrs. Lucella Nichols; history of the chapter, Mrs. C. M.
